

02/12/2013 · 9:14 AM | EDIT

5 More Family Law FaceBook Don'ts

I previously blogged on 5 Family Law FaceBook Don'ts \(Don't put your DRAMA on FaceBook!\). This is a very popular blog topic and continues to generate a lot of traffic. This post lists 5 more things you should not be doing on FaceBook with regards to your family law case.

Posting inappropriate stuff on FB is not just an American thing. 1/5 of Australian divorces use FB to discredit some testimony that was offered by one party and FB activities are showing up in about 1/3 of UK divorce cases. Familyandthelaw.com.au

5 More Things not to Put on FaceBook:

- Don't post Pictures of the other party, whether they be flattering or not. Don't do it.
- Don't post Pictures of the children doing activities with captions that note the other parent's actions.
- Don't post Pictures of your new squeeze in a "Parenting Role" that is intended to inflame the other parent.
- Don't comment on your friend's drama and "one-up" them with your own drama.
- Don't allow your FB friends to bash your Ex. (at least discourage it)

So, stay tuned for more FB don'ts as I have enough material to make this one a series and unfortunately I have a lot of new things not to do on an almost daily basis.

Matthew Thompson is a family law attorney that strives to not put inappropriate things on FB and thin Trust the Bow Tie.

Follow the blog: BowTieLawyer Visit the website: Thompson Law Firm

You may also contact Matthew with your family law case, question or concern at (601) 850-8000 or Matthew@wmtlawfirm.com.
