A rear-end collision involving three vehicles on the 57 freeway sent one driver to the hospital with injuries, according to a news report.

The California Highway Patrol reported that the collision occurred on the southbound 57 freeway just south of Ball Road when a Toyota Camry rear-ended a Toyota Rav4. The unidentified driver of the Rav4 was injured and taken to UCI Medical Center in Orange. The female driver of the Camry was not injured. CHP investigators said that the damage to the Rav4 indicated that a third vehicle was involved in the collision, possibly a big-rig.
