UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT

NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

TASH HEPTING, GREGORY HICKS, CAROLYN JEWEL and ERIK KNUTZEN, on Behalf of Themselves and All Others Similarly Situated, Plaintiffs, vs. AT&T CORP., et al. Defendants.	No. C-06-00672-VRW CLASS ACTION HEPTING PLAINTIFFS' OPPOSITION TO ADMINISTRATIVE MOTION TO CONSIDER WHETHER CASES SHOULD BE RELATED

Hepting plaintiffs file this memorandum in opposition to the Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should be Related ("Admin. Motion"), filed by plaintiffs in Spielfogel-Landis v. MCI, LLC, Case No. C-06-4221 MJJ (filed July 7, 2006).[1]

I. SPIELFOGEL-LANDIS IS NOT A RELATED ACTION

Under Local Rule 3-12(a)(1), a related action should "concern substantially the same parties, property, transaction or event." Here, because the Spielfogel-Landis action does not concern the same parties, it seems unlikely that relating the cases will result in any judicial efficiency.

First, the Spielfogel-Landis plaintiff wrongly asserts that "[t]his Court previously related Riordan, et al. v. Verizon Communications, Inc., Case No. C-06-3574-VRW . . . to Hepting." Admin. Motion at 2. This is not correct. On June 20, 2006, this Court found that Campbell, et al. v. AT&T Communications of California, Case No. 06-3596-VRW, was related to the Hepting action. Both of these cases involve similar corporate defendants. Likewise, this Court issued an order on July 5, 2006 relating the Riordan and Campbell actions. This Court has not, however, issued an order relating the Riordan and Hepting actions, and indeed, the pending motions to stay and motions for remand to state court filed in the Riordan action are not being served or filed in the Hepting action.

Second, regardless of superficial similarities, significant factual differences among the Hepting and Spielfogel-Landis cases militate against coordination. Different plaintiffs have filed the various cases on behalf of different classes, against different defendants, asserting a variety of claims that have different factual predicates. What AT&T Corp. and AT&T Inc. (collectively "AT&T") did with its customers' communications has no bearing on, and cannot establish liability for, the claims that MCI, LLC ("MCI") customers have filed against MCI. And proof that MCI did or did not violate their own customers' privacy rights will neither establish nor undermine the claims by AT&T customers in the Hepting action. Each company has separate technical infrastructures for carrying

[1] Although in filing the Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should be Related, the PACER notification suggested that the Hepting plaintiffs were being represented by Lieff Cabraser Heimann & Bernstein, and attorney Eric Fastiff from this firm, in fact the Hepting plaintiffs did not participate or agree to the filing of this motion.

and storing telephone and Internet traffic, as well as complex and distinct histories of mergers and acquisitions which will be relevant to the particular claims made against each. Because the cases present different plaintiffs, different defendants and will be proved with different facts and different defenses unique to each defendant, they should not be considered related. See, e.g., In re Not-For-Profit Hospitals/Uninsured Patients Litig., 341 F. Supp. 2d 1354, 1356 (J.P.M.L. 2004) (declining to coordinate because there was insufficient commonality of facts among cases with different defendants).

Nor will the defenses presented involve common facts. For instance, while AT&T has hinted that it may have some sort of certification from the government, and even assuming arguendo that such a certification exists and could be held legally sufficient to protect AT&T from liability for its actions, there is no basis for assuming that any disclosure of customer information by MCI operated under the same certification.[2] Each defendant will have to present its own evidence of whatever authorization it claims to have for whatever actions it is or has been taking.

II. TAG-ALONG ACTIONS NECESSITATE THE DESIGNATION OF INTERIM CLASS COUNSEL

Lieff Cabraser Heimann and Bernstein, counsel representing the plaintiff in the Spielfogel-Landis action, are the same counsel representing plaintiffs in the Roe action. This tag-along filing, coming nearly six months after the Hepting case was originally filed and over three weeks after this Court heard argument on three motions to dismiss, demonstrates the need for designating interim class counsel.

On June 14, 2006, the Electronic Frontier Foundation ("EFF") filed an Administrative Motion for Designation of Interim Class Counsel. Designating interim class counsel is appropriate where "overlapping, duplicative, or competing class suits are pending before a court, so that appointment of interim counsel is necessary to protect the interests of class members." Donaldson v. Pharmacia Pension Plan, Case No. 06-3-GPM, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 28607, at 2-3; 2006 WL

[2] This Court is well aware that plaintiffs strongly dispute whether any sort of legal authorization or certification from the government could be legally sufficient to protect AT&T here.

1308582 (S.D. Ill. May 10 2006). The commentary to Rule 23 anticipated that when duplicative suits are filed, interim counsel can ensure that someone "prepare[s] for the certification decision" and "make[s] or respond[s] to motions before certification." Fed. R. Civ. P. 23(g) advisory committee's note.

Here, motions to dismiss the Hepting complaint (briefed and argued by the Hepting plaintiffs) are currently awaiting ruling by this Court. The multi-district litigation panel will be meeting on July 27, 2006, to consider consolidation of all of these cases, but a decision is not expected until several weeks thereafter. To prevent duplicative motions and unnecessary work by plaintiffs' counsel, designating interim class counsel is appropriate at this time.

III. CONCLUSION

For the above reasons Hepting plaintiffs respectfully request that this Court deny Spielfogel-Landis plaintiff's Administrative Motion to Consider Whether Cases Should be Related, and respectfully request that the Court enter the [Proposed] Case Management Order Number 1, submitted to the Court on June 14, 2006.

DATED: July 14, 2006

Respectfully submitted,
