

Top New York Construction Accident Lawyer from The Perecman Firm Comments on Fatal Construction Worker Fall from Third-Floor Window

By: David Perecman

<http://www.newyorkpersonalinjuryblog.com/>

Another construction worker has died in New York City; this time by falling from a third floor Upper East Side apartment. The unidentified construction worker was painting inside the apartment when he apparently lost his balance and fell through a floor-to-ceiling window.

In New York City, a high percentage (approximately 41%) of the city's construction related accidents are because of construction falls. In 2011, 152 construction workers were injured in construction accidents, while five others died after a construction accident, according to the New York Department of Buildings.

“Under New York’s construction safety laws, the safety of workers who are exposed to gravity related risks must always be ensured. They must always be provided with proper protective devices in New York,” construction accident lawyer Perecman, the former head New York construction accident lawyer for the New York State Trial Lawyers Association and a lecturer on construction accident law, said.

About Perecman Law Firm P.L.L.C

The New York Employment Discrimination Attorneys focus on cases involving employment discrimination, civil rights, and workers compensation in New York and New Jersey, including Manhattan, Queens, Brooklyn, Westchester, the Bronx, Long Island, Harlem, and upstate New York. If you or someone you know is the target of employment discrimination, contact David Perecman of The Perecman Firm.