Dear Jessica,

Our Founding Fathers saw the right to a civil trial by jury as the "great equalizer" between individuals and powerful institutions. Yet, some today would weaken this right for political and financial gain. Here is our update on this important issue.

Protect Your Seventh Amendment Rights

Our Constitutional Liberties Are Threatened by "Tort Reform"

"In suits at common law, trial by jury in civil cases is as essential to secure the liberty of the people as any one of the pre-existent rights of nature." – James Madison

Beyond the barbecues and fireworks, recent Independence Day celebrations also remind us of the liberties our Constitution sought to protect, preserve and uphold. These fundamental rights are the glue that holds our nation together. Yet, many Americans aren't aware that the Seventh Amendment, which guarantees our right to a trial by jury in civil cases, is currently under attack. Advocates of "tort reform" are pushing for an overhaul of our civil justice system, which would change centuries-old common law and is in stark opposition to the vision of our Founding Fathers. You Should Know what's at stake.
