

Venture Capital & Emerging Companies Alert

APRIL 9, 2012

A Major Change for Traditional Private Placements: General Solicitation and General Advertising Coming Soon

BY DANIEL I. DEWOLF, SAMUEL EFFRON, EVAN M. BIENSTOCK, AND GARRETT JOHNSTON

On April 5, 2012, President Obama signed into law the JOBS (Jumpstart Our Business Startups) Act (H.R. 3606), a package of bills aimed at easing the regulatory burdens on private and newly public companies during the capital-raising process. One part of the JOBS Act will remove the ban on general solicitation and general advertising for private offerings of securities under Rule 506 of Regulation D. In addition to easing regulation of these private offerings, removing the ban will likely facilitate the raising of early-stage capital online.

The Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) will have 90 days to publish rules that will govern the new Rule 506. Rule 506, which contains no limits on offering size, is the most widely relied upon rule used for private offerings that are exempt from registration under Section 4(2) of the Securities Act of 1933.

Currently, it is generally accepted that due to the ban on general solicitation and general advertising, Rule 506 offerings must rely on the premise that sales and offerings of unregistered securities are being made to those investors for which the issuer or intermediary has a preexisting relationship. Once the SEC's revised rules go into effect, issuers will no longer need this preexisting relationship to solicit investors under Rule 506. The only significant limitation is that all purchasers must be "accredited investors." At this point in time, it is unclear what limits, if any, the SEC may impose on "advertising."

We believe the new Rule 506 will facilitate raising capital online. Undoubtedly, it will make private offerings less burdensome and should pave the way to make capital raising easier for early-stage companies.

Unlike crowdfunding, in a Rule 506 private placement there is no limitation on the size of the offering or how much one individual can invest. Further, no broker or intermediary is required under the law, as enacted. The SEC may, however, add requirements regarding the use of broker dealers and/or intermediaries. By limiting the purchasers to "accredited investors," Congress did stop short of "democratizing" the capital-raising process for all potential investors. For individuals, "accredited investors" generally include investors with at least $1 million in net worth, individually or jointly with a spouse (excluding the equity value of the primary residence), and/or at least $200,000, individually, or $300,000, jointly with a spouse, in annual income for at least two years.

We will keep you posted on the final SEC rules, which should be published within the next 90 days.

If you have questions about how the new rule regarding general solicitation and general advertising could affect you and your business, or about the details of the JOBS Act, please contact one of the authors of this article. We'll be happy to discuss them with you.

* * *

Follow Us

Copyright © 2012 Mintz, Levin, Cohn, Ferris, Glovsky and Popeo, P.C.

This communication may be considered attorney advertising under the rules of some states. The information and materials contained herein have been provided as a service by the law firm of Mintz, Levin, Cohn, Ferris, Glovsky and Popeo, P.C.; however, the information and materials do not, and are not intended to, constitute legal advice. Neither transmission nor receipt of such information and materials will create an attorney-client relationship between the sender and receiver. The hiring of an attorney is an important decision that should not be based solely upon advertisements or solicitations. Users are advised not to take, or refrain from taking, any action based upon the information and materials contained herein without consulting legal counsel engaged for a particular matter. Furthermore, prior results do not guarantee a similar outcome.

To change your account preferences or to unsubscribe from this email list, please visit Mintz Levin Email Subscriptions.

1782-0412-NAT-VC