3 Facebook Settings that are Critical to YOUR PRIVACY!

The social networking tide has turned on Facebook.

In an effort to keep up with the growing popularity - and openness - of Twitter, Facebook has made a series of major changes regarding the nature of its users' privacy settings.

Facebook has tried to make these changes seamless, by providing users with a "transition tool."

The tool is a dialog box which explains the changes and allows you to select an option to use Facebook's recommended settings, or customize your own.

Unfortunately, most Facebook users have chosen the recommended settings without really understanding what they're agreeing to.

Under the recommended settings, Facebook has the right to PUBLICIZE YOUR PRIVATE INFORMATION including status updates, photos, and shared links.

Be Proactive!

Protect your privacy!

Read "The 3 Facebook Settings Every User Should Check Now" by Sarah Perez at the New York Times. The informative article will guide you, step-by-step, through the process of CHANGING YOUR PRIVACY SETTINGS back to what they once were.

Why wait until something bad happens to address your Facebook privacy?
