Parents have both a moral and legal obligation to protect their children from harm. Most parents do a great job as parents, caregivers, and educators of their children. In protecting our children, there are a great many resources and educational programs that can help parents with these most important responsibilities. The Lil' Iguana Children's Safety Foundation has a mission of educating children (ages 2 through 8) about the dangers of sexual predators and serious accidental injuries. Through educational products, videos, and live events, the lessons presented by Lil' Iguana can help save a child from harm, injury, and even death. No educational program can guarantee safety for a child or protect a 24 / 7 shield for the child; however, programs like Lil' Iguana can help provide a child to better understanding of dangers. Furthermore, these educational programs gives the child some basic techniques for avoiding danger.
