

New Date for U.S. Court of Federal Claims' Annual Judicial Conference

Print Friendly

Originally scheduled for October 17, 2013, the 26th Annual Judicial Conference for the Court of Federal Claims was temporarily postponed due to the partial Government shutdown. Now, the U.S. Court of Federal Claims has rescheduled the 26th Annual Judicial Conference for Tuesday, February 25, 2014. The Conference is being sponsored by the Court and the U.S. Court of Federal Claims Bar Association in partnership with the Supreme Court Institute of Georgetown University Law Center. The conference will also be followed by a reception, sponsored by Marzulla Law, at the neighboring National Museum of Women in the Arts. The agenda for the half-day conference includes:

- A presentation of the court's new website
- Pre-Trial Case Management: The Bar's Perspective
- The Supreme Court Institute Review

The 26th Annual Judicial Conference will also include a concurrent vaccine session. The Court of Federal Claims, through Special Masters, rules on petitions for compensation due to injuries attributed to specified vaccines. The vaccine session will include an update from the Office of Special Masters, and a panel discussing best practices in presenting causation in fact cases.

The conference website, including speaker biographies, can be found here.