

Unread writing is pretty pointless. And nobody knows content better than the folks of JD Supra. So, with their help, here are 10 Rules for Writing to be Read – by clients, prospects, general counsel and executives.

10 RULES FOR WRITING TO BE READ

- 1 BE USEFUL. Think, “What can the reader do with this information?”
- 2 DON'T WRITE ABOUT THE LAW. Write about how it affects your readers' business.
- 3 TELL PEOPLE WHY TO CLICK YOUR TITLE – not what they'll get if they do.
- 4 IF TIME-SENSITIVE, capture not just why, but why read this now.
- 5 BREAK UP YOUR WRITING WITH CUES. Let readers scan and determine relevance.
- 6 USE PULL QUOTES, subheads, images, charts as clues: this piece is written for me.
- 7 INCLUDE 3 TO 5 ACTION ITEMS – next steps to take right away.
- 8 YOUR FORMULA: 1. “This happened.” 2. “Here's how it impacts you” 3. Now do this...”
- 9 CAPTURE RISKS AND UNKNOWNNS. Help your readers understand broader implications.
- 10 TRY TO PREDICT THE FUTURE.
