Plaintiffs, through undersigned counsel, allege as follows based on personal knowledge as to allegations concerning themselves and on information and belief as to all other allegations:

NATURE OF THE ACTION

Plaintiffs, who are owners of copyrights in motion pictures and sound 1. recordings, bring this action to stop Defendants from continuing to encourage, enable, and profit from the massive infringements of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works on the Internet. Dubbed the "next Napster" by the press, Defendants have developed and control networks largely dedicated to the repeated and exploitative unauthorized distribution and reproduction of Plaintiffs' protected works. Defendants provide Internet users with a fully integrated infrastructure that connects them to millions of infringing digital files. Defendants have created a 21st century piratical bazaar where the unlawful exchange of protected materials takes place across the vast expanses of the Internet, and where the materials being exchanged include first-run movies currently playing in theaters and hit songs from virtually every major recording artist. The sheer magnitude of this haven for piracy is overwhelming and undeniable. Defendants themselves cannot disclaim knowledge of the massive infringements facilitated by their networks. Indeed, in an effort to create a protected zone for piracy, Defendants have encrypted the electronic communication within their networks and boast of the anonymity it provides to users. Furthermore, Defendants have conspired with each other and with third parties in committing the acts herein averred. The ease of use of Defendants' networks and the massive piracy they facilitate have rapidly advanced their popularity with potential users. Defendants have sought to turn their growing user base into profit through advertising and investment dollars. In short, Defendants are building a business based on the daily massive infringement that they enable and encourage. Defendants' conduct has caused and continues to cause Plaintiffs grave and irreparable harm.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

BACKGROUND ALLEGATIONS

- 44. The Internet is a worldwide network of millions of computers and computer networks that enables computer users to communicate with one another through the digital transmission of information from one computer to another. Recent years have seen the development and refinement of technologies for the reproduction and distribution via the Internet of various types of infringing digital files, including files containing motion pictures, music, and other content.
- 45. Defendants have created and control extensive and integrated networks that use the Internet to connect people throughout the world and encourage and enable them to pool various types of infringing digital files, including files containing motion pictures, music, and other content, into what is effectively a distributed database of millions of such files and to make available, transmit, and reproduce unlawful copies of those files. Defendants provide their users with the infrastructure, technological means, and support and services to accomplish these infringements. Defendants are involved in and enable this process in a way that assists and facilitates their users' infringements.

Defendants have provided to their users at no cost, via online download, 46. proprietary application software that allows their users to connect to and use closed computer networks, controlled by Defendants, to reproduce and distribute infringing digital files. The primary technology to do so, which is called "FastTrack," was created by and/or under the direction of Defendants Kazaa, Zennstrom, La Galiote, Friis, and/or Indigo, which have offered the technology itself and also, at all relevant times, have licensed it to Defendants MusicCity, Grokster, Sharman, and LEF. Defendants Kazaa, Sharman, and LEF call their version "KaZaA Media Desktop." Defendant MusicCity termed its version "Morpheus." Defendant Grokster's version is called simply "Grokster." Although the versions of FastTrack differ in cosmetic ways, they contain substantially identical code and employ the same protocols. Regardless of which version their users employed, the user was or is connected to the same network controlled by Defendants. Thus, the Defendants' respective user populations utilizing the FastTrack technology have had and have mutual visibility and access to each other's infringing digital files.

Each Defendant's FastTrack application software has enabled its users to 47. connect their computers to one or more central computer servers controlled and maintained by that Defendant. After the central server registered, identified, and logged in the user, the user connected to a "supernode" - a powerful computer, with a high-bandwidth connection, operated by another user already connected to Defendants' network. Defendants Grokster and Kazaa have operated and controlled computers that function as supernodes. Defendants' central servers maintain communications with supernodes and assist in administering Defendants' FastTrack network.

- 48. After one of Defendants' FastTrack users connects to a supernode, that supernode compiles an index of digital files being offered by the user for downloading by others, and it processes search requests submitted by the user. The supernode does likewise for all other users that have been assigned to it. In response to a search request, the supernode reviews its own index of files and, if necessary, the indices maintained by other supernodes, and displays the search results to the user. Defendants have provided their users with sophisticated tools to search their networks to locate the copyrighted works they want. For example, when a user types in the title of one of the Studio Plaintiffs' motion pictures, the system displays a result list showing all currently available audiovisual files containing the title of the motion picture in their name and purporting to contain all or part of that motion picture. With simple commands, the user can download a file directly from the hard drive of a fellow user who hosts it.
- 49. Communications on Defendants' FastTrack networks between their user's computer and the Defendants' central servers, between the user and a supernode, between supernodes and the central servers, and between and among supernodes are all encrypted. Defendants created and control the means of encryption. The encryption ensures that Defendants' networks remain "closed" (i.e., cannot be accessed without Defendants' permission and the use of Defendants' software) and thus under Defendants' control.
- 50. Defendant MusicCity's infringing system has not been limited to using FastTrack, however. At relevant times, MusicCity has employed different, but functionally equivalent, technologies to operate its infringing network. For example,

MusicCity has operated its network using a technology known as "openNap," which is directly based on a reverse engineering of Napster's notorious infringing system.

MusicCity has operated one of the largest such "openNap" networks in the world.

MusicCity has also operated its network using other technologies. Regardless of the technology it has employed at any given time, however, MusicCity has continuously enabled, facilitated, and benefited from the massive infringement of Plaintiffs' works.

- 51. Similarly, the principals of Defendant Grokster have operated, through an entity known as Swaptor Ltd., a large infringing network based on openNap technology. Swaptor Ltd. has also been a licensee of the FastTrack technology and has assigned its rights under that license to Defendant Grokster. Grokster and Swaptor Ltd. were formed and are owned by the same principals, and there is a unity of interest between the two entities.
- 52. Defendants have provided their users with facilities, such as online chat rooms and message boards, in which their users with Defendants' full knowledge regularly make clear that the primary use of Defendants' networks is the unlawful distribution and reproduction of copyrighted works.
- 53. Defendants have made their networks available throughout the United States and the world. At any given time, an enormous number of infringing digital files are available for downloading through the Defendants' networks. The overwhelming majority of the digital files are being distributed and reproduced in violation of the copyright law. The infringing digital files available on and through Defendants' networks include illegal copies of hit sound recordings as well as recently released motion pictures, including many that are still playing in theaters and are not yet legitimately available in any other media format.

- 54. Defendants are capable of controlling the activities of their users and the infringing digital files available through their networks. Defendants are also aware of the illegal nature of their users' activities, and actively participate in, facilitate, materially contribute to, and encourage those activities, and profit from those activities by, inter alia, drawing users to their networks and services, thereby attracting advertising revenues and otherwise adding value to Defendants' businesses.
- After this action was filed, Defendants Kazaa, Zennstrom, Friis, La ·55. Galiote, and/or Indigo sold and transferred Kazaa's name, web site, and certain other assets to Defendants Sharman/LEF. Defendants Kazaa, Zennstrom, Friis, La Galiote and/or Indigo retained the rights to Kazaa's most important asset, the FastTrack technology that is the heart of Kazaa's infringing system. At the same time, as part of its agreement with Sharman/LEF, Defendants Kazaa, Zennstrom, Friis, La Galiote and/or Indigo licensed to Sharman the worldwide rights to the FastTrack technology in return for the payment of a continuing royalty to Kazaa and agreed not to issue new licenses of the FastTrack technology to others (the "License Agreement"). Under the License Agreement, Sharman has the right, among other things, to maintain, modify, update, develop, and assign the FastTrack technology and any improvements it makes to that technology. Defendants Sharman/LEF currently operate and control the infringing network previously operated and controlled by Kazaa, Zennstrom, Friis, La Galiote and/or Indigo, and are the successors to Kazaa in the control, maintenance, and further modification and development of the underlying FastTrack system that is responsible for the massive infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works by all the Defendants.
- 56. Defendants have engaged in a conspiracy, common enterprise, and common course of conduct, among themselves and third parties, through which they have, among other things, developed, maintained, and controlled the FastTrack technology; implemented uniform upgrades and updates of FastTrack; exploited each other's user base, and sold and transferred the rights to that technology among each other. The purpose of such conspiracy, common enterprise, and common course of conduct has been, among other things, to serve each of these Defendant's own economic benefit by knowingly, willfully, and intentionally infringing Plaintiffs' Copyrighted Motion Pictures and Copyrighted Sound Recordings and to attempt to escape liability to Plaintiffs. Each of these Defendants knowingly, willfully, and intentionally has committed the acts hereinabove described in furtherance of the conspiracy, common enterprise, and common course of conduct.

CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(By All Plaintiffs Against All Defendants, for Copyright Infringement Pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 501, et seq.)

- 57. Plaintiffs repeat and reallege each and every allegation contained in paragraphs 1 through 56 as if fully set forth herein.
- 58. A tremendous amount of copyright infringement takes place on and through Defendants' networks every day. These infringements occur, inter alia, whenever one of their users, without authorization of the copyright owner, uses Defendants' networks to download a copyrighted content file from another user's computer or makes copyrighted content files available for such unlawful downloading. Such acts constitute unauthorized reproduction and distribution and result in unauthorized copies. Defendants participate in, facilitate, materially contribute to, and encourage these infringements.
- 59. At all relevant times, Defendants have engaged and continue to engage in the business of knowingly and systematically participating in, facilitating, materially contributing to, and encouraging the above-described unauthorized reproductions and/or distributions of the Copyrighted Motion Pictures and Copyrighted Sound Recordings and thus the infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrights and exclusive rights under copyright in the Copyrighted Motion Pictures and Copyrighted Sound Recordings. Defendants have actual and constructive knowledge of the infringements committed on and through their network.

60. At all relevant times, Defendants have derived substantial financial benefit from the infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrights. Defendants display advertisements on their networks and charge fees for such advertising. The amount of those fees is directly related to the number of users, which depends directly on Defendants' having a wide range and selection of pirated motion pictures, sound recordings, and other works. The availability of such content attracts new users to Defendants' networks, which adds, in turn, to the inventory of pirated content. In addition, Defendants are undertaking a purposeful strategy to make their networks and their respective businesses more attractive to existing and potential investors and advertisers by increasing the number of their users and the volume of unauthorized copyrighted motion pictures and sound recordings available for unlawful reproduction and distribution.

- 61. At all relevant times, Defendants have had the right and ability to supervise and/or control the infringing conduct of their users.
- 62. Defendants, through (a) their active participation in the unauthorized reproduction and/or digital distribution of unauthorized copies of Plaintiffs' copyrighted works, (b) their provision of the means and facilities for unauthorized reproduction and distribution, (c) their encouragement of their users to engage in these unauthorized acts and their material contribution to their users' acts, (d) their control over the means and facilities by which such unauthorized reproductions and

-26-

distributions are effected, and (e) the substantial, direct financial benefits that

Defendants derive from all of the aforesaid acts, all with full knowledge of their illegal consequences, are committing, and/or are contributorily and vicariously liable for, a vast number of copyright infringements, including infringements of the Copyrighted Motion Pictures and Copyrighted Sound Recordings.

- 63. The infringement of each Plaintiff's rights in and to each of the Copyrighted Motion Pictures and Copyrighted Sound Recordings constitutes a separate and distinct act of infringement.
- 64. The foregoing acts of infringement by Defendants have been willful, intentional, and purposeful, in disregard of and with indifference to Plaintiffs' rights.
- 65. As a direct and proximate result of Defendants' infringement of Plaintiffs' copyrights and exclusive rights under copyright, Plaintiffs are entitled to damages as well as Defendants' profits pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(b) for each infringement.
- 66. Alternatively, Plaintiffs are entitled to the maximum statutory damages, pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(c), in the amount of $150,000 for all individual infringements involved in the action with respect to any one work for which any one infringer is liable individually, or for which any two or more infringers are liable jointly and severally, or for such other amount as may be proper pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(c).
- 67. Plaintiffs further are entitled to their attorneys' fees and full costs pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 505.

-26-

68. Defendants' conduct threatens to cause, and is causing, and unless enjoined and restrained by this Court will continue to cause, Plaintiffs great and irreparable injury that cannot fully be compensated for or measured in money.

Plaintiffs have no adequate remedy at law. Pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 502, Plaintiffs are entitled to preliminary and permanent injunctions prohibiting further infringements of their copyrights and exclusive rights under copyright.

WHEREFORE, Plaintiffs pray for judgment against Defendants as follows:

- 1. For Defendants' profits and for damages in such amount as may be found, or alternatively, for maximum statutory damages of not less than $150,000 for all individual copyright infringements involved in the action with respect to any one work for which any one infringer is liable individually, or for which any two or more infringers are liable jointly and severally, or for such other amount as may be proper pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 504(c).
- 2. For a preliminary and a permanent injunction enjoining Defendants and Defendants' agents, servants, employees, officers, attorneys, successors, licensees, partners, and assigns, and all persons acting in concert or participation with each or any of them, from: (a) directly or indirectly infringing in any manner any of Plaintiffs' respective copyrights or other exclusive rights (whether now in existence or hereafter created), including without limitation, copyrights or exclusive rights under copyright in the Copyrighted Motion Pictures listed on Exhibit A and the Copyrighted Sound Recordings listed on Exhibit B, and (b) causing, contributing to, enabling, facilitating, or participating in the infringement of any of Plaintiffs' respective copyrights or other exclusive rights (whether now in existence or hereafter created), including without limitation, copyrights or exclusive rights under copyright
