Temporary Foreign Worker Program - Information Technology Specialists

Written By: Jennifer Ervick

On September 30, 2010, the temporary foreign worker program for information technology (IT) specialists will come to an end (except for employers wanting to hire foreign workers for positions in Quebec). The purpose of the temporary foreign worker program was to fill critical shortages in Canada's software industry. Citizenship and Immigration Canada has determined that the shortage of IT workers in Canada no

HIGHLIGHTED BLOG POST

Jeff Pniowsky's Tax Law Blog - Directors Beware - Personal Tax Liability Looms

The recent decision of the Tax Court in Williamson v. The Queen is a good reminder of the personal obligations directors have under the Income Tax Act (ITA) for remitting employee source deductions and the potential harsh consequences for failing to live up to those obligations.

Social Media: Applying 'Old' Privacy Laws to New Marketing Initiatives

Written By: Elmer Gomes

The speed at which Social Media is implemented by businesses to take advantage of marketing opportunities is often very quick. Once the opportunity is recognized, businesses want to be seen as progressive and get ahead of their competition. Unfortunately, in an effort to be the 'first out of the gate', this sometimes means that some businesses may not fully appreciate all of the implications of adopting Social Media strategies as part of their marketing initiatives. Privacy is one example of the issues that businesses have to consider.

Drug and Alcohol Testing in the Workplace: A Legal Balancing Act

Written By: Scott Hoepfner

The law in Canada regarding drug and alcohol testing in the workplace has largely developed within the context of labour and human rights law. Even with the number of decisions which have emerged in recent years, the law remains relatively complex and, at times, difficult to interpret. For example, depending upon the context in which drug or alcohol testing is required (i.e., unionized vs. non-unionized), different considerations can and will apply. As a result, there are a significant number of pitfalls for employers wishing to institute drug and alcohol testing in their workplaces.

On the Farm it's Safety First, but Accidents Happen

Written By: Ross McFadyen, and Rob Olson

Everyone wants to avoid accidents in the workplace. Employers and employees of farming operations are no exception. However, farm workplaces present a variety of hazards, and injuries to workers do occur. It is therefore important for both employers and employees to know the laws applicable to safety and accidents in the workplace. In addition, employers and employees should be aware of the laws in Manitoba relating to the liability of farm employers for injuries to their workers and the compensation available to such workers.

IP Audits Get Venture Capital Flowing Faster

Written By: Silvia de Sousa, with assistance from Tatiyana Bubnowicz
(Articling Student-at-law)

If your technology start-up business is looking for venture capital financing, the performance of an intellectual property audit ("IP Audit") is essential to avoid delays in obtaining such financing. IP Audits are an important mitigation strategy to consider prior to any licensing, financing, merger or transfer. After an IP Audit, you will have a better understanding of your intellectual property liabilities, risks and legal status. Intellectual property assets include such things as domain names, copyrights, trade secrets, trademarks, patents, branding and technology and software licences.
